New Beginning for The Wellington Academy

The Wellington Academy have started the academic year with a new Headteacher and new aspirations. The school have set up a student charter in a bid to support students.

The Wellington Academy have started the academic year with a new Headteacher with new aspirations and goals in sight. With Rob Wood leading the school, alongside Jane Coley, newly appointed CEO for Ascend Learning Trust, a Student Charter Agreement has been signed by both. This document is a promise from Rob and Jane to uphold the agreements during their time at The Wellington Academy.

The Student Charter outlines the expectations that the school have set for themselves to deliver to each of their students and encourages positive teamwork. The charter outlines the opportunities that are available for each student to partake in some kind of new activity that will enrich learning and life experiences.

Rob has been with the school for 14 years. Having previously worked as Deputy Headteacher for the school, Rob has worked closely with the leadership, staff, students and community. In this role he has been able to understand fully the aspirations and needs of the school and its students and is confident in the next best steps for leading the schools forward.

Rob Wood Headteacher at The Wellington Academy went on to say “I am thrilled to be starting my first year as Headteacher for The Wellington Academy. Jane and I have welcomed this student charter as a promise to the students at The Wellington Academy, to ensure that they are provided with the best possible education. We take it upon ourselves as a whole school to celebrate all efforts and achievements from our pupils and equally celebrate anyone who has had to try and try again to master all aspects of their learning.”
