Secondary School Students Create Their Own Podcasts

Royal Wootton Bassett Academy welcomes visitors from Collaborate Digital for a workshop. The workshop promoted the importance of recognising an unhealthy relationship, abusive behaviours and how to seek support when needed.

In groups, students mapped out their ideas of what they felt came under the bracket of an unhealthy relationship and then chose a topic to focus their podcast around. Students then went into the recording studio.

David Storey, Associate Leadership Team Member at Royal Wootton Bassett Academy went on to say “Following 3 whole year group assemblies, the podcast workshops were an innovative way to learn and speak about such an important topic. Unhealthy relationships can take many forms and it is so important that students are able to spot the signs. This supports work which we already do in school fabulously. We are extremely grateful for Mark and Steve for taking the time to visit.”

This Academy is proud to be a part of the Ascend Learning Trust.
