

Released on 14 October 2026

School support for military students

Pupils from military families continue to receive extra support to help with the unique challenges they face.

Staff from The Wellington Academy joined several other local secondary schools, from Hampshire and Wiltshire, and Andover College in the signing of the Educational Covenant, pledging a joint commitment to support pupils from military families.

The event was hosted by Andover College 6th Form and is a culmination of a year-long Military Champion initiative to ensure that pupils from a military background receive the same opportunities and advantages which children from non-military families enjoy.

The event at Andover College

Teachers Jennifer Moore and Kasia Cooper from The Wellington Academy signed the agreement on the school's behalf, strengthening the academy's ongoing dedication to support service pupils through school moves, parental deployment and separation, and many other challenges which are a direct result of belonging to the armed forces community.

Mrs Cooper, Mrs Moore and Lt Col RT Richard Wade, Andover Army HQ

Kasia said: "Everyone at The Wellington Academy is fully committed and dedicated to providing continued support and help for our students from a military background. This is also alongside the celebrations of important milestones for them and their families.”

This Academy is proud to be a part of the Ascend Learning Trust.